SECTOR OVERVIEW

- Deal wins, continuing digital investments to drive revenue in 4QFY21, margins, FY22 guidance/CY21 IT budget outlook and key vertical growth to be watched: We expect IT stocks under our coverage to report a combined 4.1% QoQ USD revenue growth on top of the decadal high 3Q growth witnessed, as the sector continues to enjoy a growth recovery, with new deal wins, ramp up of recent deals and digital transformation investments to drive revenue. Cross-currency tailwinds are also expected to aid reported USD revenue growth by 50-120bps, with TCS to see maximum impact (120bps) owing to the highest proportion of revenue coming from these currencies. INR appreciation will lead to INR growth coming in lower than USD revenue growth.. We expect TCS and Infosys to out-perform on revenue growth among the top-tier IT pack, with 4.2% and 3.8% % QoQ constant currency (CC) revenue growth, respectively (both 5% QoQ in USD terms), led by continuing deal ramp ups as they leverage their industry leadership. Wipro is likely to report 2.8% CC revenue growth (above the mid-point of guidance) and 3.6% QoQ USD revenue growth. HCL Technologies (HCLT) and Tech Mahindra are likely to under-perform, with 1.7% and 1.1% QoQ CC growth respectively (2.6% and 2% QoQ USD growth, respectively), as HCLT sees seasonal weakness in the P&P business, while Tech Mahindra is likely to see some project completions with lack of backfill. Among mid-tier IT, we expect Happiest Minds Technologies to out-perform with 12% QoQ USD revenue growth, aided by the acquisition of PGS, along with decent organic growth of 4% QoQ. Tata Elxsi is also likely to grow revenue at a healthy pace of 6.5-7% QoQ in CC terms (6% INR growth), aided by healthy growth in its Broadcast & Communications and Healthcare & Medical Devices verticals, and recovery in the Transportation vertical. On the other hand, the other 3 firms under our coverage (Mindtree, Persistent Systems and Sonata Software) are expected to achieve CC revenue growth of 3-3.5% QoQ, led by key verticals including ISV, Retail & CPG, BFSI, Healthcare and Manufacturing. We would watch CY21 IT budget commentary, FY22 revenue and margin guidance, deal flows, wage cost inflation impact and attrition trend.
- Margin performance to see divergence, with wage hike timing, INR appreciation to have varying impact: Even as revenue growth is likely to be healthy, we expect EBIT margin to be divergent in 4QFY21, given timing of wage hikes along with INR appreciation. Revenue growth leverage, continuing cost management and higher offshore component are key cost levers to offset impact of wage hikes and a potential partial cost return. TCS is likely to out-perform among the top-tier IT pack, with 74bps QoQ margin rise expected, while Tata Elxsi could out-perform among the mid-tier IT pack, with 39bps QoQ expansion likely. Infosys, Wipro, HCL Technologies and Tech Mahindra are all expected to post EBIT margin declines of 20-90bps QoQ owing mainly to wage hike impact (except Tech Mahindra). HCLT had awarded a one-time bonus of INR 7.5 bn to its employees, which will lead to a steep 472bps QoQ EBIT margin increase, while adjusting for this, margin should decline 89bps QoQ. Among the mid-sized IT firms, Mindtree and Persistent Systems are likely to report 80-90bps QoQ margin dip owing to wage hikes, while Sonata will report 177bps QoQ rise due to weak seasonality of the low-margin DPS business.
- CY21 IT budgets, FY22 outlook, TCV wins, wage cost inflation margin impact and attrition trends to be in focus: We would keep a close eye on CY21 IT budget commentary, FY22 growth outlook (qualitative and quantitative), TCV data, and impact of wage cost inflation on margins, apart from attrition trends. Key vertical performance including BFSI and retail are also critical to watch, as is growth in other verticals including Hi-tech, Communications, Media and Healthcare. We would also watch for any recovery in the Travel vertical, with Sonata and Mindtree having reasonable exposure to this vertical. Infosys guidance also assumes importance, given its status as a sector bellwether along with TCS, and we expect the IT major to guide for 12-14% CC revenue growth, with a possible EBIT margin band of 22-24%, below FY21 levels in light of high wage cost inflation and part-return of cost items.
- Sector outlook and view: We expect 4QY21 to confirm continuation of healthy growth and deal wins for the sector. Global results like Accenture and medium-term outlook for Capgemini signal continuing good times ahead for the industry. Even as stock prices have performed well over the past year and valuations are in the range of 1.3-1.5x 5-year average, we believe this will continue in light of healthy growth outlook. We maintain a positive sector stance on the IT industry, and our stock preferences remain Infosys, HCLT and Tech Mahindra among the top-tier pack, while we remain positive on Persistent, Tata Elxsi, Happiest Minds Technologies and Sonata Software in the mid-tier pack. We raise our target prices on all these mid-tier stocks, with our earnings estimates on all 4 firms higher by 10-15% in light of better-than-expected growth momentum, and we also raise our target PE multiples to 25x for Persistent (22x earlier), 35x for Tata Elxsi (30x earlier), 16x for Sonata (14x earlier) and to 40x for Happiest Minds Technologies (30x earlier). We have ACCUMULATE ratings on all these stocks, with Tata Elxsi and Happiest Minds Technologies upgraded from HOLD.

HCL Technologies
Sales (USD Mn)	2,684	2,543	5.5	2,617	2.6	USD revenue growth is likely to come in at 2.6% QoQ (1.7% QoQ in CC terms), as weak seasonality in the P&P business impacts total growth, even as ITBS and ER&D growth is likely to be healthy at 3-3.5% QoQ. EBIT margin is likely to decline steeply by 472bps QoQ owing to a one-time bonus of INR 7.5 bn awarded to employees, which will drive down PAT by 29% QoQ, given that 3Q tax rate was also lower owing to a one-time item. Adjusted for the one-time bonus, EBIT margin is likely to decline 89 bps QoQ owing to wage hikes awarded to a particular band of employees.

Tech Mahindra
Sales (USD Mn)	1,335	1,295	3.1	1,309	2.0	USD revenue is likely to rise 2% QoQ (1.1% QoQ in CC terms), with some project completions and lack of backfill leading to subdued sequential growth. Margin is likely to remain flat to slightly declining, with lack of healthy revenue growth and INR appreciation to adversely impact this by 22 bps, while higher other income and a lower tax rate should aid PAT growth of 2.3% QoQ.  Key Parameters: (1) TCV deal wins, (2) 5G commentary, (3) Commentary on CY21 IT budgets, (4) Revenue growth and sustainable margin outlook for FY22, (5) Commentary on key Enterprise verticals including Manufacturing, Retail, BFSI and Energy.

Sterlite Technologies
Sales (USD Mn)	N.A.	N.A.	N.A.	N.A.	N.A.	For 4QFY21, we expect STL to report revenue of INR 14,500 Mn, up 10.3% QoQ on steadily improving volumes and utilisation of OF and OFC capacity, and aided by Optotec acquisition. YoY growth is likely at a healthy 25%. Consolidated EBITDA is expected to rise by 13.4% QoQ (rise of 20.5% YoY), as growth leverage and improving volumes boost operating profit. EBITDA margin is likely to rise 50 bps QoQ, and decline 67 bps YoY. Net profit is expected at INR 950 Mn, up 9.7% QoQ and up 18.3% YoY. Sales (USD Mn)	34	19	76.5	31	6.5	We expect top line to increase 6.3% QoQ and 78.1% YoY led by exponential spurt in volumes of transactions processed with onboarding of a greater number of merchants for online receipt of payments. Payment gateway, which contributes 90-95% of their payments business (73% of total revenue) has been seeing strong growth in volumes of transactions processed with signing up of more vendors for the services. We have forecasted uptake in margins in Q4FY21 on Q-o-Q basis to the tune of 10% points in Operating margin and 820 bps in Net Profit margin led by likely fall in depreciation with peak capex cycle being over for the company and strong uptick in transaction processed volumes.  Key Parameters: (1) Activity in platform business post strategic tie-up with different players (2) Growth in Gross Transaction Value in the payment business (3) Daily volume data from UAE / Saudi Arabia / Oman market (4) Commentary on expansion of business in the US market
