Summary

- We maintain a Buy on V-Guard Industries with a revised PT of Rs 540, factoring in the growth from the Electronics, Electricals, and Kitchen appliances segments. V-Guard currently trades at 63x/48x/41x its FY2025/2026/2027 EPS, respectively.
- Strong performance across segments boosted revenues growth to 13.0% in FY24, and margin improvement was driven by a decline in commodity costs and operational efficiency from the stabilizer plant in Pantnagar.
- Sunflame business integration progressed smoothly in FY24 with the set up of professional and strong leadership at Sunflame.
- We expect Revenue/PAT CAGR of ~17%/~28% over FY2024-FY2027E EPS.

In its FY24 annual report, V-Guard reaffirmed the company's focus on expansion in the south region, new product launches, and stabilising the Sunflame integration. The company's strategy includes adding 3000-4000 new retailers annually to support sales acceleration initiatives across various product categories. In FY24 standalone revenues stood at Rs 4,559 crore up 13% y-o-y. EBITDA jumped by 17.5% y-o-y due to lower raw material cost costs and pricing actions in certain categories. The interest cost was higher due to additional debt raised to acquire Sunflame. The standalone PAT grew by 28.6% led by strong growth and improvement in OPM. Management expects demand momentum to continue in the coming quarters for FY2025, with EBITDA margins expected to revert to 10-10.5%. The recently commissioned battery and kitchen appliance factories are expected to deliver benefits in FY2025. With new facilities coming online, in-house manufacturing is expected to go about 75% over the next 12-18 months from 65%, which would partly support gross margins and help become more competitive.

- Focus on non-south markets: V-guard is a very well-known brand in South India and is making great efforts to expand its reach to non-south regions by increasing its touch points in non-south regions. The contribution from the non-south areas has significantly increased from 40% in FY20 to 46% in FY24. Non-south markets grew at a faster pace of 13.9% in FY24 than South markets (+11.5%). The company aims to improve its non-South contribution by ~200bps every year for the next 4-5 years and has made inroads into newer markets through its merger with Sunflame, which has strong presence in the North. For Q1FY25 The Non-South business grew faster, by 30% contributing 51% of Q125 revenues, whereas South markets grew by 17%.
- Inhouse manufacturing to support growth: The company has revamped its in-house manufacturing, contributing significantly, around 65% in FY24 vs 40-45% in FY20. This shift towards in-house manufacturing has ensured 1) superior quality & finish, 2) product differentiation and 3) cost advantages. Further Sunflame's chimneys & hoods facility that operationalised ahead of merger at Faridabad could potentially be an in-sourcing opportunity with cost advantage of ~7-10%.
- Management guidance: As per the management, the strong demand of summer led products has led the robust performance in the quarter. Management expects the growth in similar fashion from Electronics and Consumer Durables segment for FY25. The company expects to revert to EBITDA margin of 10-10.5% on account of pricing actions across some of its summer products (2% in Q4 and 1% in Q1FY25) apart from other initiatives.
- Revision in estimates – We maintain our estimates for FY2025-FY2026E and introduce FY27 estimates.

Our Call

Valuation – Maintain Buy with a revised PT of Rs. 540: V-Guard is on the cusp of a high-growth trajectory, as it is deploying multiple levers for the next level of growth. We are also positively upbeat about its acquisition of Sunflame, as it would help the company expand its presence in the fast-growing kitchen appliances segment. The acquisition has a huge potential as V-Guard can leverage Sunflame's strong presence in traditional channels, scale up its own Sunflame's strong presence in conventional channels, and scale up its presence in modern trade and e-commerce platforms. We expect Revenue/PAT CAGR of ~17%/~28% over FY2024-FY2027E EPS. Hence, we retain a buy recommendation on V-Guard with a price target (PT) of Rs. 540, increasing our valuation multiple times considering its strong earnings growth trajectory over the coming years.

Key Risks

A relatively weak demand environment in some product categories may affect earnings.

Outlook and Valuation

■ Sector View – Uncertain environment likely to normalise in the medium term

The consumer durables/electrical industry has seen good demand since H2FY2021, the momentum of which is expected to continue further. The government's Atmanirbhar Bharat program would benefit from capital subsidies and industrial benefit policies being doled out to give a push to in-house manufacturing. Further, demand for electricals and electronics from the housing sector has been robust due to low-interest costs and ease of financing. Management expects better supply security and margin improvement with increased in-house manufacturing. Healthy cash positions are likely to aid companies in inorganic growth opportunities, as organised players benefit from a tough environment.

■ Company Outlook – Multiple growth levers

Management expects healthy growth to be sustained going forward. The company remains focused on 1) Evolving category mix and product mix, 2) Go-to-market with a focus on e-commerce and modern trade, and 3) Distribution enhancement in smaller towns and rural areas, with a focus on the non-south region. The company expects to add 3,000-5,000 retailers every year in the non-south regions. V-Guard has more than 1lakh retail points. Overall, the management is focusing on maintaining a healthy cash position, cost rationalisation, and expediting digitisation. The acquisition of a leading kitchen appliances brand – Sunflame – is in line with its strategy to become a significant player in the domestic kitchen appliances industry, which currently forms just 4-5% of its total revenues.

■ Valuation – Maintain Buy with a revised PT of Rs. 540

V-Guard is on the cusp of a high-growth trajectory, as it is deploying multiple levers for the next level of growth. We are also positive about its acquisition of Sunflame, as it would help the company expand its presence in the fast-growing kitchen appliances segment. The acquisition has a huge potential as V-Guard can leverage on Sunflame's strong presence in traditional channels and scale up its own presence in modern trade and e-commerce platforms. We expect Revenue/PAT CAGR of ~17%/~28% over FY2024-FY2027E EPS. Hence, we retain a Buy recommendation on V-Guard with a price target (PT) of Rs. 540, increasing our valuation multiple considering its strong earnings growth trajectory over the coming years.

The client base differs from product to product and includes direct marketing agents, distributors, and retailers.

Key Risks

- ♦ Intensifying competition and weak performance of consumer durables is a key concern.
